Tony Boyle Sentenced

WASHINGTON (AP) — Boyle, hand-picked by the United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle was sentenced Tuesday to five years in prison for illegally giving union funds to political candidates and was immediately jailed until he can raise $179,000 in appeal bonds.

The order of U.S. District Judge Charles Richey, who ignored an emotional appeal from Boyle's attorney not to send him to prison, was the latest in a string of legal setbacks for the embattled 70-year-old president of the 180,000-member union.

Boyle was sentenced for illegally contributing $49,000 in union money to political candidates, including $30,000 to the unsuccessful 1968 presidential campaign of Democratic nominee Hubert H. Humphrey.

In addition to the prison term, Boyle was fined $130,000 and Richey ordered him jailed until he can post an appeal bond for the total amount of the fines and the amount of illegal political contributions.

Search For Hijacker

PERU, Ind. (AP)—The search for a missing skyjacker around this quiet Indiana town known as "Circus City" began to fizzle Tuesday.

Wary FBI agents from three states and state, county and city law enforcement officers repeatedly checked a mile-square area around a soybean field where $500,000 in ransom money was found by a farmer Monday.

The young hijacker jumped or fell from an American Airlines Boeing 727 jet a few hours before dawn Saturday after taking over a flight Friday between St. Louis and Tulsa, Okla. The hijacker, armed with a submachine gun, forced the plane to return to St. Louis.

It was rammed by a car before it could take off, but the hijacker, with five crew members and a male passenger as

Welfare—Elderly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of elderly persons on welfare dropped to a 32-year low in February although overall relief rolls expanded by 97,000, the government announced Tuesday.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the Old Age Assistance—OAA—caseload decreased by 4,000 to 2,015,000, the lowest level since August 1940, despite a rapidly rising over-65 population.

The decline was attributed in large part to higher Social Security payments, which have gone up 26.5 per cent the last two years while the cost of living rose only 9.7 per cent during that period.

The aged-poor population could shrink even more if Sen.

Missing Policeman

CHICAGO (AP) — Authorities searched without success Tuesday for a suspended police sergeant who disappeared in the midst of an investigation into the slaying of six black businessmen.

Investigators appeared uncertain if Sgt. Stanley Robinson was abducted or sent into hiding. They said that an anonymous telephone caller reported Monday that four men forced a man resembling Robinson, 36, into a car on the

McGovern Swings Southward Delegate Disputes Boil

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sen. George McGovern carried his presidential hopes into a politically chilly South Tuesday, and disclosed he is willing to keep Lawrence F. O'Brien as the Democratic party chairman if he wins the nomination.

The South Dakota senator made this disclosure in late afternoon at Little Rock, Ark., after he had described as beautiful the newly shaped party platform which includes many of his views.

McGovern told a news conference that he had talked with O'Brien and is inclined to retain the chairman, if he wins the nomination and with it the right to pick a chairman. McGovern added that this would depend on O'Brien's wishes and the ability of the two men to agree on party policy.

In Washington, O'Brien said: "Sen. McGovern made clear in his call to me his desire that I continue as national chairman should he be the nominee."

"The senator did not seek a commitment and none was given," O'Brien said.

McGovern telephoned the party chairman after receiving word of a published report that if nominated he might decide to replace O'Brien with a woman.

Strategists for the presidential front-runner worked warily at the troublesome task of settling disputes over the seating of convention delegates.

The Associated Press count of delegate strength put the South Dakota senator at 1,358.9 of the 1,509 it will take to choose a Democratic presidential nominee two weeks from Wednesday.

McGovern's men claimed more, maintaining they were within a scant 20 votes of first-ballot nominating strength.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota campaigned in Washington and Cleveland, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine in Washington, as they struggled to keep alive frail hopes of overtaking McGovern at the Democratic National Convention in Miami Beach.

A familiar Democratic name, Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, was the central one as the convention credentials committee worked at a record array of challenges.

Illinois insurgents contend that Daley handicapped a slate of convention delegates, 59 of whom were elected in the March 14 primary, in defiance of party reform rules.

Cecil F. Poole, a credential committee hearing examiner, reported that the Daley delegates were selected in violation of reform requirements by a city organization that excluded rank and file Chicago Democrats from the process of selecting delegate candidates.

However, Poole made no recommendations for action to be taken against the Chicago delegation. The committee is expected to take up the case Friday.

Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's national political director, said he would seek a compromise on the Illinois dispute. He said it is doubtful any Democratic presidential nominee could carry Illinois against President Nixon without Daley's support.

In a late-afternoon ruling the Credentials Committee voted 69 to 55 to seat Alabama's 37-member delegation which includes 29 pledged to that state's governor, George C. Wallace. The rejection of this challenge, brought by a predominantly Negro faction, is almost certain to be tested on the floor of the convention.

On another pivotal credentials controversy, Humphrey and other challengers seeking to strip McGovern of 151 California delegate votes got no encouragement in the report of a hearing examiner.

Bombs Shatter Peace Of Truce In Ireland

BELFAST, NORTHERN IRELAND: British soldier, with rifle slung over his shoulder, walks past debris left by bomb, reported to be the last one to go off before the cease-fire went into effect in Northern Ireland Tuesday. Firemen at left hose down damaged buildings. Bomb was said to be a "car terror bomb," exploded in a car, by the Irish Republican Army (IRA). (UPI Telephoto)

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two bombs shattered the calm of Northern Ireland's fragile new truce Tuesday night and British troops were called in to halt street fighting between rival gangs of Protestant and Roman Catholic youths.

The bombs, both planted in cars, exploded in quick succession in East Belfast. One blast was on Kilmood Street and the other nearby on Terry Street, both in a Protestant neighborhood.

Security officials said there were no casualties, but houses in the vicinity were damaged.

The street clashes broke out on the opposite side of the city in the Crumlin Road area. Youths threw stones back and forth at each other until the troops moved in to keep them apart.

The bombs were believed to be the work either of dissidents of the Irish Republican Army or else of militant Protestants, irate over the truce agreement between the IRA and British authorities administering the province.

The truce was the first in three years of violence.

Militants of the Irish Republican Army hid their guns and bombs in secret caches.

Patrols of Britain's 15,000-man security force began quietly vanishing from city streets and returning to their outposts.

It was the start of a frail cease-fire that came into force last midnight as the result of an offer by the Provisional wing of the IRA.

Panel Okays Measure Banning Handgun Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill to ban the commercial sale of snub-nosed, easily concealable handguns not suitable for sporting purposes won the approval of the Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chief sponsor of the measure, said it would "take out of the marketplace the weapons used most frequently by criminals... without diminishing the opportunities of sportsmen and marksmen" to acquire pistols.

The committee approved Bayh's bill by a 12-2 vote after rejecting, 9-5, a rival measure by Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., to set safety and reliability standards for handguns.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., tried to amend Bayh's bill to require registration of all firearms and the licensing of owners but lost by one-sided margins.

Bayh's long-dormant bill was jarred loose by the attempted assassination last month of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace at a shopping center in nearby Laurel, Md.

Bayh said his bill would prohibit the sale of guns of the type used in the shooting of Wallace and the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., in 1968.

The only committee members voting against Bayh's bill, which now goes to the Senate for action, were Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., and John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

Voting for it, in addition to Bayh, were Hruska, Kennedy and Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.; Quentin Burdick, D-N.D.; John V. Tunney, D-Calif.; Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C.; Edward J. Burney, R-Fla.; Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii; Charles Mathias, R-Md.; Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.; and Marlow Cook, R-Ky.

Bayh's bill would prohibit the sale, except to law-enforcement officers, of research organizations, of revolvers with less than a 3-inch barrel and of pistols with an over-all length of less than six inches.

House Refuses To Cut Back Funds To Develop Weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backing President Nixon's bid for sustained U.S. development of new offensive weapons under the Moscow accords, the House decisively rejected proposals Tuesday for a cutback of more than $1.6 billion.

The House also rejected by 244 to 152 a proposal to order all U.S. forces out of the Indochina war by Sept. 1 in return for release of American prisoners.

The House backed the President's request for accelerated development of the new Trident missile submarine and B1 bomber plus a Safeguard anti-missile site for Washington and tighter Safeguard radars in a $21.3-billion weapons bill.

The authorization for planes, missiles, ships and all other U.S. weapons for the fiscal year starting July 1 then was passed 334 to 59 and sent to the Senate.

"We ought to take the President at his word that he wants to stop the arms race," said Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., in an appeal for the cuts.

But House Armed Service Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., had contended in opening debate that rejecting the new U.S. weapons development while the Soviets are permitted to continue arms improvements under the Moscow accords "would be the most dangerous game we could play with our national defense."

The opponents argued the new weapons could undermine the U.S.-Soviet arms limitation agreements and Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., contended they should be rejected simply because they are too costly and not needed.

"Obviously we've got the power to blow the Soviets to smithereens," Pike said. "And all we're talking about here is how fine a powder to grind the other peoples of the earth into."

Pike's amendment to reject all $445 million in the bill for development of the B1 bomber to replace the B52 in the early 1980s was voted down 278 to 94. Leggett's amendment to cut all $350 million in the bill for Safeguard procurement was rejected 258 to 117.

Learn To Swim

Happiness Is Safety In Water

The American Red Cross has been teaching swimming and lifesaving since 1914. So, if you still don't know how to swim, it's not because there hasn't been an opportunity to learn.

Actually, everyone should learn how to swim. First of all, it is good exercise and recreation. Even more important, however, is the safety aspect of this water sport.

This summer more than 100 million Americans have already taken to the water for swimming, sailing, canoeing, skiing or pleasure boating.

These activities will be more fun if all aquatic sportsmen follow recommended safety precautions. This applies not only to those in the water but those near it as well, "because 60 per cent of the people who drown each year fall into the water accidentally," according to Charles Russell, acting national director of Red Cross Safety Programs.

Most of those individuals could have saved themselves, Russell says, "if they had been able to swim, because almost invariably safety—in the form of a dock, a boat or the shore—was nearby."

Some 7,300 persons drown in this country each year. The drowning rate is 3.6 persons drowned per 100,000 population. Nearly 60 years ago, when the Red Cross began its program of instruction, the number of persons drowned per 100,000 was 10.2.

So, the drowning rate has dropped to nearly one-third of its former level while the total population of the country has more than doubled and participants in water sports have multiplied more than 10 times.

It's a pretty good record, but it isn't quite good enough and with normal cautions, according to the Red Cross, the number of drownings could be reduced even more drastically.

Here are a few of the precautions you can take to help insure swimming and water safety for your family and yourself:

— Learn to swim. Contact your local Red Cross for the time and place of the next available lessons.

— Watch small children carefully around the water—even in supervised areas, and even in shallow wading pools.

— Always swim with a buddy.

— Swim in a safe place.

— Before diving, make sure the water is deep enough and there are no hidden objects under the water.

— Wait at least an hour after eating before swimming.

— Don't swim if you are overtired or overheated.

— Be sure the proper lifesaving equipment is available in your swimming area.

— Don't depend solely on an inflated toy or inner tube to keep you afloat. It may slip away from you.

— Get out of the water when storms approach; water is a good conductor of lightning.

Better Food Buys Up To Consumer

Could it be the confused consumer needs a batting coach to sharpen his swing at buying the groceries?

After much initial kicking and screaming and cries that "the cost will ruin us," supermarkets across the country are now displaying unit prices for many or all foods on their shelves.

Unit pricing, when its use began to spread in all sizes of food stores slightly more than two years ago, was heralded as another home run for consumerism. Much behind-the-scenes jawboning by consumer advocates and vote-hungry politicians went into the promotion of this aid to better buying.

The basic idea is to provide a sound method of comparing the prices of say, two items by their volume to select the better buy. However, a recent survey reveals that someone is dropping the ball as far as unit pricing in practice is concerned.

Who is to blame?

It is generally agreed that the disinterested consumer contributes more than his share to the current ineffectiveness of unit pricing.

What excuse may a consumer offer while complaining about the mounting weekly food bill when he refuses to utilize what can be a money-saving aid available in so many stores? Many women, for example, say they do not have time to read the tags that list the prices. Others cling to normally more expensive products because of brand names and refuse to sample other foodstuffs with unfamiliar labels.

But there is a problem in unit pricing. This is the legitimate complaint of consumer specialists who point out that many stores make the computerized print-out tag a jumble of numerals, difficult to decipher. If, as surveys show, stores that heavily promote and explain unit pricing to their customers have the highest usage response by its customers, then more stores should be encouraged by their shoppers to provide such information in a clear, understandable and accessible manner.

It all boils down to the fact that the key to making unit pricing work to aid the family food budget rests with the consumer. The food stores have thrown the ball and it is up to the individual consumer to swing his own bat.

Demo Party Reforms Bring Changes To Convention

By DON MCLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The wheeler-dealer power brokers who have traded blocs of delegates in backrooms for favors rendered or expected and picked most Democratic presidential nominees are likely to be punchless strangers at this year's convention. The combination of party reform moves and the surprising political expertise of George S. McGovern are going to make this convention unlike any ever seen before. And when it's over, the old style politics could be buried for good. All this means that the public watching on home television screens needs to learn a whole new set of rules and expectations if it is going to understand any of what it sees. In the first place, the old power brokers are more broke than powerful these days. A lot of them couldn't even win seats to the convention. And those who will be there, will have only fractured remnants of their former followings. There will be new faces in unprecedented number when the convention opens in Miami Beach on July 10. Almost 90 per cent of the delegates will be attending their first national political convention.

The 10 to 15 per cent repeater rate compares to a normal figure of at least 35 per cent.

This is due in part to the reform rules which have opened the selection process and made it easier for rank-and-file Democrats to become convention delegates.

But it is equally attributable to the work of McGovern and others, like Rep. Shirley Chisholm, who have seen to it that their supporters were out in force every time even small party groups met to conduct party business.

There was no chance for a handful of party regulars and professionals to fix things their own way; they were outgunned at almost every turn.

The new rules also brought other statistical changes by requiring certain balances. Of the delegates certified to the national committee so far about one-third are women, compared to only 13 per cent four years ago. About 20 per cent will be under age 30, against 4 per cent in 1968. Some 15 per cent so far are black, about three times the 1968 number.

In the old days, delegates in large part went as units in delegations handpicked by the top party leaders in their state.

Texas had the "unit rule" which allowed the delegation leader to take a captive group bound to vote however he did. But this year, the Texas delegation is split four ways with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and McGovern—neither the favorite of the traditional party movers—sharing most of the votes.

There will be some of the old powers back, but with considerably less power. Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley controlled all but three Illinois votes in the 1968 convention. This year he will be lucky to hold onto 70 or 75 members of the delegation of 170.

Labor traditionally has held a solid core of strength at any Democratic convention. This year its power is questionable.

AFI-CIO President George Meany tried getting labor people elected as uncommitted delegates so he could deal them out at the convention. But the voters weren't having it. Most of the few labor men who made it are already committed to specific candidates.

So most delegates this year weren't put together into effective blocs. The closest thing to blocs in most cases are the states representing winning candidates in primaries, but these are mostly loyalists dedicated to their man, not wild cards to be traded.

One possible situation being speculated about is what will happen if McGovern falls just short of the nomination on the first ballot. Under the old ways, his second-ballot strength could be expected to fall off. Under the new dispensation it isn't likely to happen.

A bloc delivered by a governor could be easily shifted. But individual delegates there because they want their man nominated have an entirely different motivation and it takes something different to move them.

This could also cause heavy trouble in the event of a legitimate deadlock; 3,016 individualists won't be prone to compromise.

Tokyo Relations:

Want Expertise, Not Frock Coat

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Senior Japanese officials have privately told American friends they fervently wish the United States would be represented in Tokyo by a man very close personally to President Nixon, with a strong working knowledge of both U.S. and Japanese politics.

That man would be able to understand and mesh the conflicting internal political pressures of both countries and be able to speak with authority for Nixon and with complete knowledge of his objectives.

They beg us not to send any more proper ambassador types, however talented.

They blame the lack of Japanese understanding of American domestic politics and the limited American understanding of Japan's internal situation for the frictions which have developed in the past year.

These men see an urgent need for a closer association with the United States in the years ahead—not a lessening of the ties built in the years since World War II. But they want it to be a different sort of cooperation, one less formal, perhaps, and more personal with less bureaucratic nicety and more human give and take.

Since the Japanese group involved includes both the present and likely future leaders of Japan, they speak with some authority.

As one longtime Japanese friend writes from Tokyo (a man with close relationships with the top men in the Tokyo government), Americans and Japanese have got to be "more frank and candid" about ways and means for breaking down whatever impasses arise.

There has been, he says, too much of government officials "talking to one another across a square table, limiting themselves to more or less officially-sanctioned points of argument."

His letter is typical. Other letters, too, complain of the formalized government-to-government talks where feelings are carefully controlled and hidden in the background.

The Japanese are a very human people, deeply concerned with human intentions, personal feelings and the individual problems of men and women and their families and communities.

Our compassion to Japan immediately after World War II has bound the United States to Japan more closely than most people understand. The Japanese value our friendship more than our formal alliance.

For some reason, the U.S. government, over several administrations, has not understood this. And this has been our failure.

Getting down to specifics, what some Japanese would like is for Americans and Japanese (or the American and Japanese governments) to work closely together in developing political, investment, trade and aid relationships with other countries in the Far East and the greater Pacific basin.

There is some inclination along this line within the higher circles of the Nixon administration also, but little action. The Japanese are concerned that with the passing of time and little done, the opportunities for such cooperation will slide and the two countries will drift apart.

Certain Japanese would like especially for the United States and Japan to work together in developing relationships with China and the Soviet Union. They believe that a coordinated (cooperative) U.S.-Japanese approach would avoid some of the political pitfalls almost certain to develop when Japan and the United States work individually with these closed, highly controlled, somewhat suspicious societies, whose political aims differ so greatly from our own.

Ann Landers:

Message To Daughters:

Raise Your Own, We Did

Dear Ann Landers: Nonna and Boomba here. We'd like to use your column to get a message to our daughters. It is inspired by the young mother who thought her parents were "rotten" because they refused to be round-the-clock sitters:

Dear Daughters: We apologize for raising you to be such spoiled kids. We apologize, too, for still being in our fifties, young enough to enjoy going away weekends instead of staying in town and taking care of your kids so YOU can take off. We'd like you to know that we didn't shove you on OUR parents when you were babies. Your father and I stayed home plenty, or we took you with us.

Now it's our turn to go—and your turn to stay home with YOUR children. Ruling out sickness or emergency, there is no reason why you girls and your husbands shouldn't be responsible for your own children. When they are grown, you will want to be free and you will have earned your freedom.

As time marches on and your children marry and have little ones, you can tell them what I am telling you. RAISE YOUR OWN. WE DID.—Nonna and Boomba (St. Louis)

Dear Nonna and Boomba: I loved your letter. Thanks for writing it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have read so many letters in your column ending with the age-old question: "My husband runs around. What should I do?" It's highly amusing to me that you, Ann Landers, should be trying to dispense advice on this subject. As a woman you cannot possibly know WHY men run around.

I am 34, a successful executive and have a loving wife to whom I've been married for 13 years. She is beautiful, charming, a gourmet cook, a lady in the living room and a tiger in the bedroom. Yet, for the life of me I could not name all the women with whom I've had affairs.

There are only two kinds of men—those who cheat, and those who would like to but are afraid of getting caught. No husband would remain faithful if he could be sure he would not be found out.

The only motivation for cheating is the thrill of a new conquest. So why not tell it like it is? This urge is as old as man himself. It is normal, healthy and harmless. — Asheville, N.C. Headonist

Dear Ash: Since you make the point that a woman cannot possibly speak for men, I respectfully submit that a rounder and an admitted tomcat cannot speak for decent, mature husbands.

Granted, many husbands think (and behave) as you do. But they are grossly immature. A man who says his wife is "wonderful" and attributes 13 years of bed-hopping to "the thrill of conquest" pegs himself at the Don Juan level. If he examines what he is "conquering" he will get a good reading of himself. Any man can find a woman who will go to bed with him—if he sets his standards low enough.

Dear Ann Landers: I learned something today that opened a door to understanding and peace of mind. For years I hated my older sister. I know now it was not her fault. It was my mother's. She always favored Sis. Whatever Sis wanted she got. I grew up thinking Sis was mean and selfish. If Mother had been fair I would not have had these feelings.

Now that I know, I can love my sister. Please print this letter for others who hate their sibling.—Comes The Dawn

Dear Dawn: And now if you can forgive your mother, you will have achieved a full victory.

NOW-ENDS THURS.

It's the day that Nature strikes back!

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The bumpy ride through the Illinois legislature of Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's $561-million capital-development bond issue is over.

The senate gave 39-7 approval to the measure Monday and sped it toward Ogilvie's desk.

The Governor's chief fiscal initiative of the spring budget-making session, it envisions phasing out the Illinois Building Authority and revamping the way in which the state pays for construction of schools, prisons and other institutions.

It was buffeted for two months by political battling in the House, passing only last week as a component of a legislative compromise package.

Another element of that agreement, allowing Chicago schools to borrow $35 million in operating expenses from their building fund, cleared the Senate minutes after the bond is-

Opponents of the bond bill argued that it was poorly planned and too expensive. Those favoring it called it a vast improvement over the building authority.

Sen. Egbert Groen, R-Pekin, termed the building authority "an abomination" and "the most costly thing ever imposed on the people of this state."

The IBA issues revenue bonds, while, under the capital-development plan, the state will issue general-obligation bonds.

Revenue bond holders are paid only with revenues from the projects actually financed by the bonds.

That means that those possessing IBA bonds are paid with "rents" collected by the authority from the state institutions that use the buildings.

General obligation bonds, in contrast, are backed by "the full faith and credit of the state."

The legislature appropriates payments to bond holders directly.

Ogilvie argues that comparatively lower interest rates on general-obligation bonds will save $60 million for the state over the 20-year life of the issue.

The plan earmarks:

- $398.4 million for educational institutions.
- $34.8 million for prisons and other corrections department facilities.
- $58.6 million for conservation.
- $56.6 million for institutions under the Department of Mental Health, Public Health and Children and Family Services.
- $12.5 million for other state agencies.

The Senate also appropriated $18 million for payment of principal and interest on fiscal 1973 bonds and $100,000 to fund the capital-development board.

No Such Thing As 'Safe Fireworks'

The Fourth of July, which should be a happy highlight of Summer vacation days, each year turns into a disastrous occasion for as many as 6,000 children—and 4,000 adults—who are victims of fireworks accidents.

"THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS SAFE FIREWORKS!" so states Fire Prevention Bureau Officer Bud Sullivan of the Jacksonville Fire Dept.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 28 — Born today, you are destined for a full and gainful life—if you are willing to put the time and effort into the development of the many talents and abilities with which you have been gifted. If you are not so willing, however, you risk spending your days as a jack-of-all-trades and master of none. Obviously, it is to be hoped that those responsible for your upbringing will instill in you while you are yet if you are to attain anything like the success your gifts portend, your instinct is for a let-surely life. If you can achieve an end of modest proportions with less work, you will be inclined to do just that, rather than fire up your ambition and make the big pitch for greater, more lasting success. It should be needless to say that your happiness does not depend upon fame or fortune. You will be perfectly satisfied

Fregosi's Homer Tips Pirates, 7-4

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Fregosi singled in two runs early in the game then broke a 4-4 tie with a three-run home run as the New York Mets beat Pittsburgh 7-4 and cut the Pirates' lead in baseball's National League East to one game.

Fregosi's fourth home run of the season came off relief pitcher Bob Miller and scored John Milner and Cleon Jones.

Fregosi put the Mets in front with his two-run single in the first. It came after Dave Marshall and Milner had singled with two out and advanced on Jones' walk.

Pittsburgh took a 4-2 lead when Willie Stargell singled and Richie Hebner homered in the second. Oliver homered in the fourth and Dave Cash scored on Oliver's sacrifice fly in the sixth.

Briggs Sparks Milwaukee Past Baltimore, 6-4

BALTIMORE (AP) — Johnny Briggs slugged a game-tying three-run homer in the sixth inning and singled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Baltimore Orioles 6-4 Tuesday night.

The homer by Briggs off starter Doyle Alexander followed Joe Lahood's single and a fielding error by second baseman Dave Johnson and tied the score 4-4 in the American League baseball game.

George Scott doubled to launch the winning rally off Roric Harrison, 0-1, who had not allowed a run in his previous 21 innings of relief, and Briggs bounced a single up the middle to snap the tie. Dave May's third single and a sacrifice fly by Ellie Rodriguez sent Briggs across.

May also singled and scored Milwaukee's first run on a fifth inning hit by Mike Ferraro. Baltimore went ahead 4-1 in the fifth when Mark Belanger singled home two runs and later scored on a double steal. A sacrifice fly by Paul Blair accounted for the first Oriole run in the fourth.

Winner Ken Brett, 4-3, was lifted with one out in the eighth and Ken Sanders came on to record his 11th save of the season.

LAS VEGAS: Scheduled 12-rounder between Jerry Quarry and Muhammad Ali for North American heavyweight title started with a burst as Quarry came out swinging Tuesday evening. Ali threw few punches but did a lot of shuffling and clowning at Las Vegas Convention Center. Ali won on TKO in seventh round. (UPI Telephoto)

Cubs Split Pair, Jenkins Wins 6-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Nash drove in four runs with a home run, a single and a double to power the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-4 triumph over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday for a split of their baseball doubleheader.

The Cubs, scoring three unearned runs in the sixth inning with the aid of only one hit, won the opener 6-3 behind Ferguson Jenkins' six-hit pitching.

All of Ryan's blows came after two were out. He slugged his second homer of the year in the second, singled home a run in the fifth and doubled home another in the seventh.

Reliever Darrell Brandon, 4-1, took over from starter Ken Reynolds in the fourth to earn the National League victory.

The Cubs scored one run in the bottom of the second and then took a 3-2 lead in the third when Jim Hickman tripled home a run and scored on a single by Rick Monday.

The Phillies retaliated with three runs in the fourth with Willie Montez driving in the first on a fielder's choice and Oscar Gamble cracking a two-run, pinch single.

Glenn Beckert laced his second homer of the year in the ninth to complete Chicago's scoring. Woody Fryman took the mound for the Phils in the last of the ninth after the Cubs put two on with two away and struck out Monday to end the game.

The Cubs took a 2-0 lead in the fifth inning of the opener on a triple by Ron Santo, a double by J.C. Martin and a triple by Bill North.

They clinched it in the sixth when they scored the three unearned runs. Pitcher Jim Nash dropped a throw covering first base to start it. A pair of wild pitches, two walks, a sacrifice fly and a single by Jenkins accounted for the scoring.

Jenkins, 9-6, had a two-hit shutout going into the seventh but lost it on a walk, a single by John Bateman and Don Money's fourth homer of the season.

Golf Pro Bill Lynn Tuesday announced that a Fourth of July Golf Tournament will be held this weekend at Nichols Park.

Golfers will play 36 holes, with the required number of holes to be played anytime Saturday, Sunday, Monday or Tuesday. Both scratch and handicap divisions will be held in the medal play tournament.

Anyone is eligible, with a $2 entry fee to be charged. Players should sign up at the Nichols Park Pro Shop.

A BREAK FOR SENIORS
SOUTHOLD, N. Y. (AP) — Tuesday and Thursday are light days for those fishing the waters of Peconic Bay, so Mrs. Mary Morris of the southold Fishing Station did something about it.

Outboard boat and motor rentals on those days are half price for senior citizens. Instead of paying $17.50 for an 18-foot boat and motor, each Tuesday and Thursday it costs, a senior citizen only $8.75. If a senior has a motor he can rent a boat for $4.50.

CHICAGO: Cubs' catcher J. C. Martin is out at third on a bunt by Ferguson Jenkins in the third inning of first game of doubleheader Tuesday afternoon. Making the tag is Philadelphia's Don Money, who received the throw from catcher John Bateman. Cubs won opener 6-3 but dropped 7-4 decision in nightcap. (UPI Telephoto)

Ali, Foster Whip Quarry Brothers

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — By the fifth round, Jerry Muhammad Ali completely out-boxed Jerry Quarry Tuesday night and stopped him after 19 seconds of the seventh round, when referee Mike Kaplan called a halt to their scheduled 12-rounder at the Las Vegas Convention Center.

The bout followed the scheduled 15-round light-heavyweight championship bout in which Bob Foster, unleashing a devastating left-right combination to the jaw of young Mike Quarry, Jerry's brother, retained his title by knocking out the No. 1 contender as the bell sounded at the end of the fourth round.

The end of the heavyweight match came with Jerry Quarry on the ropes and Ali hitting him at will.

From the fourth round on, the big question seemed to be lacked steam in his punches and, at times, Ali landed four and five shots at a clip.

It was the same in the sixth, with Quarry, the No. 2 challenger behind Ali for Joe Frazier's heavyweight crown, bruised under both eyes, taking from Cypress, Calif., had slugged the ex-heavyweight champion with lefts and rights to the body early in the fight but failed to slow him.

Ali, 30, from Cherry Hill, N.J., began moving in after jabbing in the fourth round and also used frequent right up-percuts to slow his charging foe.

The game 27-year-old Quarry, just when the end would come.

Ali, weighing 216½ to 198 for his opponent, scored his third victory of the year but his first in which he stopped his foe. Under Nevada rules, it was scored as a technical knockout.

Ali collected $500,000 and Quarry $200,000. The ex-champion also maintained his momentum toward a return bout against Frazier, the only man to beat him.

"I definitely could have gone on," Jerry Quarry said after the bout, "but it wouldn't do any good. My brother's fight took it all out of me."

The elder Quarry was never knocked down in his fight. Ali's record rose to 37-1 with his 28th kayo. Jerry Quarry is now 39-6.

Chris, the 17-year-old backcourt phenom from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was to have played Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego on Wimbledon's hallowed No. 1 court, but with press and TV cameramen poised for the entrance, the courts were hit with a driving rain.

Smith, the 1971 runner-up to Australia's John Newcombe, and Miss Goolagong, the defending titleholder from Australia, both beat the downpour as did all seeded players and a strong cordon of Americans, including four other men and four women.

The 6-foot-4 Smith, an army corporal from Pasadena, Calif., showed more familiarity with grass as he beat Hank Irvine of Rhodesia 6-4, 9-8, 6-3. Irvine carried a powerful forearm, carried the tall, blond American to a sudden death in the second set but Smith's powerful serve and volley were too much at the end.

Smith was seeded No. 1 when the professionals of the World Championship Tennis troupe—including Newcombe, Rod Laver and Ken Rosewall—were ruled ineligible before finalization of a peace agreement.

Miss Goolagong, who drew an opening round bye as did Miss Evert and Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., had little trouble beating Marilyn Pryde of New Zealand 6-3, 6-4. Eville played loosely, bearing down only when pressed.

The rain interrupted an exciting duel between veteran Andres Gimeno of Spain and dark-horse Onny Parun of New Zealand. The New Zealander had match point at 2-0 in sets, 5-4 and 40-30 on service, only to lose the point and ultimately the next two sets. The score was 3-3 in the fifth set when the rain came.

All the seeded players who managed to get on court before play stopped came through without trouble. Alexander Metreveli, the eighth seed from Russia, joined Smith in the third round of the men's singles with a 7-9, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 victory over France's Patrice Dominguez.

In the women's singles, Kerry Melville of Australia and Nancy Gunter of San Angelo, Tex. both won their first round matches. Mrs. Gunter, seeded third, beat Valerie Lancaster of Australia 6-2, 6-1, while Miss Melville beat Vicky Berner of South Africa 6-2, 6-2. Kerry is seeded fifth.

U.S. losers in the Men's singles were Sherwood Stewart of Baytown, Tex., who lost to Van Dillen; veteran Alex Olmedo, a former Wimbledon champion from Encino, Calif.; and Paul Gerken, of East Norwalk, Conn.

Joining Mrs. Gunter in the U.S. contingent in the women's singles were Pam Teeguarden, Los Angeles; Janet Newberry, La Jolla, Calif.; and Mary Ann Eisel, St. Louis. The lone U.S. women's loser was Mrs. Denise Carter-Triolo of Los Altos, Calif.

Buchanan Still Claiming Foul

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Only the two of them were there in the room now, father and son.

It was what the novelists call the moment of truth.

Ken Buchanan, his eyes bloodshot, his features swollen and his lightweight championship spirited away by Roberto Duran, a little Panamanian buzzsaw, via a TKO at the end of the 13th round, looked glumly at his father.

Tom Buchanan, who manages his son, waited for him to say something and finally Ken Buchanan did.

"I can't understand how I can lose a title on a foul," he muttered, taking off his tartan-colored boxing trunks before moving toward the shower.

Tom Buchanan put his arm around his son.

"You gave your heart to the fight," he said. "You couldn't give any more."

The fight, scheduled for 15 rounds, had ended in sheer bedlam.

Buchanan, the pride of Scotland, and Duran, the power of Panama, had continued fighting after the bell sounded ending the 13th and suddenly Buchanan was groveling on the canvas, clutching his groin with both hands while all the pain in the world was mirrored in his face.

For an instant, nobody was quite sure what had happened. Gil Clancy, one of Buchanan's handlers, climbed swiftly through the ropes, conversed briefly with the writhing Scotsman and appealed to referee Johnny LeBlanco marking his scorecard in a neutral corner.

LeBlanco eventually moved across the canvas to where Buchanan was lying, watched him struggle to his feet, then jackknife over in pain again, and declared the fight over and Duran the winner.

"No, no, no," screamed Clancy.

"Yes, yes, yes," repeated LeBlanco.

The crowd of 18,821 at Madison Square Garden was stunned. Not so much over the fact that Duran was the new champ, after all he was far ahead on all the officials' scorecards, but by the fact that Buchanan clearly was implying he was fouled. And to make it worse, after the bell.

Some of those filing out of the Garden didn't like the way the fight had ended. They didn't like it at all, and they said so.

After all, Buchanan was way behind, wasn't he?

The only way he could possibly keep his title was by a knockout, wasn't it?

What better time for a bit of play acting?

Could it possibly be true? Could Buchanan have simply pretended he was hit or kned in the groin?

The question was a delicate one but someone put it point-blank to Tom Buchanan. Was it at all possible his son had pretended?

Tom Buchanan's eyes narrowed at that one.

He is, after all, a father, and no father likes hearing something like that about his son.

"Never," Tom Buchanan said quietly but firmly. "Never, never."

He is, after all, a father, and no father likes hearing something like that about his son.

"Never," Tom Buchanan said quietly but firmly. "Never, never."

"Why are you so sure?" the questioner persisted.

"Because I knew my boy," said the elder Buchanan. "I always said if he ever lost the title, he'd have to be knocked out. He'd never quit. Mind you now, I'd never regret his losing the title to a better fighter. That didn't happen tonight. Duran may go on to become a better champion but he wasn't tonight. I wish to make one thing plain: We're not cry babies. We've always come to America and gotten a square deal. We're not blaming the American people. Only one man is partially to blame, and that's the referee. He let Duran get away with everything."

Ken Buchanan said substantially the same thing.

He wasn't sure whether it was a punch or a knee he took below the belt but he was sure it was something.

Duran, he said, kept "getting away with hell, murder" and the referee "gave me no protection whatsoever. Duran is a good fighter. I give him that, but I can assure you, as God is my witness, he never hurt me."

For his part, the 21-year-old coffee-colored Duran couldn't understand what all the fuss was about.

What foul, he wanted to know?

An interpreter tried explaining it to him.

"A lotta boxers have tried making that same claim before," said Duran. "What is he talking about 'a knee'? I hit him with a punch in the kidney."

After the bell?

What about a return?

"That's up to my manager."

Duran's manager, Carlos Elela, said he was "not satisfied" with the way the fight ended, and Buchanan could have a return bout in November. Buchanan says he'll take it.

With a different referee though.

Hull Joins WHA

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — Superstar Bobby Hull completed a $2.5 million day Tuesday by signing a 10-year contract to become player and coach of the Winnipeg Jets of the new World Hockey Association.

Hull, who said he had no regrets in jumping from the National Hockey League's Chicago Black Hawks, signed a $1.5 million agreement with the Jets in Winnipeg after earlier signing a $1 million contract with the WHA in St. Paul, Minn.

Gary L. Davidson, president of the WHA, called the deal "the largest contract ever presented" to a professional athlete.

Hull, who was the leading active goal scorer in the NHL and second on the all-time list with 604 goals in 15 seasons with the Black Hawks, became the 91st player signed by the fledgling WHA and the 34th with NHL experience.

"This is a great day in my life," said Hull, as he filed down the aisle of the charter flight that took him from St. Paul to Winnipeg with his wife and shook hands with each passenger on the turboprop jet.

"I have no ax to grind, no regrets about my decision," said Hull.

Also on the plane were Davidson and Jets' President Ben Eatskin.

A WHA spokesman described the contract signed in St. Paul as a "personal services" arrangement, while the agreement in Winnipeg was the actual playing and coaching agreement, backed by the Jets.

Hatskin said he had been negotiating with Hull or his agent for about five months.

Davidson said the signing of Hull "means the establishment of credibility with the public—something that took the other new leagues three or four years to accomplish before they got a superstar such as Hull. He is a great public relations figure with the press, the public and the advertisers."

"He has the same image in hockey that Babe Ruth had in baseball. He is more than just a hockey player to us."

Hull said he planned to begin shopping for cattle soon for a farm which he plans to operate in the Winnipeg area.

A WHA spokesman said the deal should net Hull more than $3 million during the term of the contract, with additional income from endorsements of WHA Properties Ltd. products.

Hull predicted that Arthur and William Wirtz, executives of the Black Hawks, would not go to court in an attempt to bar him from playing with the first team in October.

"I think they would be barking up the wrong tree," said Hull. "I think they will consider this as a business transaction. I know I had some difficulties with them a few years ago but all that is resolved and didn't figure in my decision," he said.

NHL President Clarence Campbell said in Miami that he had no immediate comment.

Hull was asked what his loss would mean to the Black Hawks, who finished in last place in the East Division four years ago, when Hull missed the first six weeks of the season after a contract dispute.

"They got along without me before," Hull said. "They still have a lot of good players."

Hull said his main concern now is "getting the WHA off the ground."

"I think the money involved does more good to boost my incentive to play hockey," he said, adding that he plans to play at least five more years.

Asked if other Chicago players would follow him into the new league, Hull said, "That remains to be seen. Several of the players have already signed."

The White Sox added their final run in the ninth before Roger Nelson came on to get the last out.

CHICAGO (AP) — A toxicologist says a study of 18 brands of tooth paste revealed that five of them were packed in tubes with outer coatings containing dangerous levels of lead.

The scientist, Dr. Eleanor Berman of Cook County Hospital, reported her findings in the July issue of the Archives of Environmental Health.

She identified the five brands as Crest, Fresh Breath, MacLean's, Craig Martin and Whitmore.

Dr. Berman said that, "Potentially hazardous amounts of lead in the paste itself were found in Crest, Fresh Breath and Whitmore."

A spokesman for the manufacturer of Crest, Procter and Gamble Mfg. Co., said his company has been aware for more than 10 years that the Crest tube allowed lead to leak into the paste. He said this company is introducing a new tube with one which contains no lead.

Walgreen Co., the manufacturer of Fresh Breath and Whitmore, also plans to eliminate the lead-containing tube, a spokesman said, but for reasons unconnected with possible health hazards.

Bridging The Generation Gap

(Fifth in a Series)
By Dr. Willard Abraham
"The trouble with the younger generation is that I'm no longer a part of it."

So said one wise man and another matched him with this comment.
"Limit not thy children to thine own ideas. They are born in a different time."

If you have ever tried to recall details of your own childhood, you know how difficult it is. It was long ago, in the fading pale blue of another lifetime, it sometimes seems. So if your own is hard to remember, that gives you an indication of how formidable is the task of seeing childhood through someone else's eyes. Through those of your own youngsters, for example.

A lot of people have vividly pointed out what a problem it is. In his recent book, "Future Shock," Alvin Toffler gives us something to think about when he reminds us that asking a child to wait two hours for a piece of candy may be like asking his mother to put off having a cup of coffee for 14 hours.

A world of legs, tall tables, big chairs, eyes looking down, words that are long and meaningless—that's a child's environment. So let's not forget how tough it is to see the world as he does, without memories of wars and old friends, and without concerns for finances, marital adjustment, cars that won't run and jobs that terminate.

His worries are different. They evolve from today and the party to which no invitation came, the parents who have no time for him or the taunting and teasing of a big brother. Our challenge is to see and understand what he sees, accepts and may not fully understand. A great lady, Jane Addams, referred to our task and our challenge in this way:

"...the mature of each generation run a grave risk of putting their efforts in a futile direction... unless they can keep in touch with the youth of their own day and know at least the trend in which eager dreams are driving them."

But at least we have help in seeing their world. It takes time, patience and listening, not just to the words that come but to what's behind them. And if we're too close to our own youngsters to hear what they are really saying, we might get some insights into their point of view in easy-to-take doses from another direction.

The vehicle might be as close as a popular movie or a good book. What we see on the screen or printed page may seem unrelated to the thoughts percolating in the kid's room down the hall but that's only because we often don't really know our own kids.

When a child enjoys the hide-out under the house and rolling down the street inside an old tire (as in "To Kill a Mockingbird"), we get a brief glimpse of what's important to some children. When a girl urges the audience to help children fully savor the fleeting years of childhood (as in "Our Town"), we begin to appreciate the brief time those few years are with them. When young people talk, act, and relate as they so realistically did in ("The Last Picture Show") we might be fearful but then perhaps it's more comfortable to have strangers on the screen tell us "like it is."

To see through the eyes of our own youngsters may obviously not be fully possible. The gap between their world and ours can be shortened somewhat, however. Their limited perspective restricts their coming closer to us, so it takes our maturity to bring us nearer to them.

The vivid writing of Robert Fontaine (in "Happy Time") can help us. So can Rachel Carson's colorful appraisal of childhood (in "The Sense of Wonder"). And when Ray Bradbury temporarily deserted science fiction for the small town days of a 12-year-old in 1928 (in "Dandelion Wine") he helped get us out of ourselves and into the life style of the youth we faintly remember.

"Long ago and far away" said the old song, and it's on the right track as we view the youthful exuberance of a world we don't fully understand. We're up the first step, however, if we accept the fact that it's different from ours, but at least approachable if we try to grasp what their words, expressions and even body language tell us—and if we sometimes use the enjoyable route of print and film to take us closer to them.

THE DOCTOR SAYS If You Like That Sort Of Thing Eat Eggshells For Calcium?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb—On a television show they demonstrated how eggshells could be pulverized in liquid drinks in a blender. I haven't tried it yet, but wondered about the possibility of cholesterol in the eggshells. I am glad to hear about the calcium. I hadn't thought of that and I could use more as I seem to have difficulty in getting enough milk into me. We use nonfat milk and occasionally buttermilk and have tried to cut down our cholesterol intake in other ways.

Dear Reader—No, there is no cholesterol in the eggshells and if you like the particular drinks described I can't see any harm in using them to provide a source of calcium. Also, there is no cholesterol in egg white and it is an excellent source of protein for cooking. I strongly support the use of egg whites in the diet as a good, cheap source of protein. It is only the egg yolk that people are concerned about in terms of either cholesterol or fat content. If you want to cut down on the cholesterol intake you can use a lot of recipes that call for a whole egg by modifying them and using two egg whites rather than one whole egg.

I thoroughly approve of your using nonfat milk powder for cooking and other nonfat milk products. Although it is true that milk has some cholesterol it is not a high cholesterol food. The big concern about whole milk is the relatively large amount of saturated fat it contains. Saturated fat seems to stimulate the body to produce cholesterol in the body itself which in turn leads to the formation of fatty deposits in the arteries. You should be just as concerned about saturated fats from other sources besides milk.

I was quite shocked recently to hear one of our self-appointed grand poobahs of nutrition explaining on a national TV show that skim milk was harmful because you need the milk fat to absorb vitamin A from the digestive tract. That theory is World War I vintage. Anyone who knows anything about nutrition knows that there are so many other sources of fat in the diet besides milk that it is almost impossible to have a fat free diet that would prevent absorption of Vitamin A.

I am particularly pleased, however, at the great strides that large segments of the dairy industry have made in providing useful low fat or nonfat milk products such as the excellent nonfat dry milk powders that are available, the uncreamed cottage cheese or low fat cottage cheeses and the low fat milk or some of the fortified skim milk products. The fortified skim milk products are really quite tasty.

Does all the talk about cholesterol disturb you? If so, you'll want to read Dr. Lamb's booklet in which he answers your questions about this subject. Send 50 cents to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, N.Y., N.Y. 10019. Ask for "Cholesterol" booklet.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—From the time they hitchhiked into Yellowstone National Park, Phillip "Crow" Bradberry and Harry Walker did "everything wrong," says assistant Park Superintendent Vernon Hennessey.

Park officials said the two Alabama men camped in an off-limits area and left open food at their campsite when they went hiking—an invitation to hungry bears.

When they returned, a 400-pound grizzly was rummaging about the campsite. It killed Walker, 25, Anniston, Ala. He was the first person killed by a grizzly at Yellowstone in 30 years, and the fourth in the park's history.

Hennessey said Bradberry, of Oxford, Ala., and Walker had "done everything wrong."

He said they should not have camped in the prohibited area and should not have left a dirty campsite while they went hiking.

Bradberry said Monday that he and Walker came upon the grizzly about 1 a.m. Sunday. "Harry heard it first and when he shined his flashlight on the bear it was right on top of us. 'The bear knocked Harry down and chased me. I dived and rolled and the bear went back for Harry. I stopped running a few seconds later and called out, 'Has the bear left?'" Bradberry said.

"I heard him scream," Help me, Crow! Help me!"

"He could not have assisted Walker in any way," Hennessey said. "The only choice he had was to get out of the area and back to the inn for help."

"If the bear had gone for Bradberry, he would have also been caught. You can't outrun a grizzly," he said.

He said the best thing to do when confronted by a bear is to roll up in a ball and play dead. "I know it sounds difficult to do—and you're going to get slapped around some—but that's your best chance of survival."

Education Board Plan Rejected By State House

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A plan to create a State Board of Education with its eight members appointed by Illinois General Assembly leaders failed Tuesday in the House.

Sponsored jointly by assistant Democratic leader Clyde L. Choate and Republican Speaker W. Robert Blair, the measure was aimed at meeting a requirement of the 1970 Constitution that the legislature establish a statewide school board.

The bill fell 20 votes short of passage.

Members would each have represented a district composed of three congressional districts. The board would have appointed a state superintendent of public instruction for a four-year term.

Appointments to the board would have been made jointly by the House speaker, House minority leader, Senate president pro tempore and Senate minority leader.

"This is one of the worst bills to come before this legislature this year," Rep. John C. Hirschfeld, R-Champaign told the House. "Some of us who are somewhat unhappy with what happened on reapportionment don't want to entrust another thing to the legislative leaders."

Most opponents of the plan argued that the job of appointing the board should rest with the governor. They argued that House and Senate leaders were elected only to represent their districts and not the plan state.

Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glenview, warned that the measure would be a "real move toward infusing political cronyism into the field of education."

Choate shrugged off the charge, saying "all appointments carry political considerations... you know it. I know. Let's admit it."

Legislation still pending in the House sponsored by Rep. Anthony Scariano, D-Park Forest, would create a seven-member board appointed by the governor.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois House approved Tuesday legislation to allow 17 downstate mass transit districts to obtain state grants without putting up matching funds.

Sponsored jointly by Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, and Minority Leader Clyde L. Choate, D-Annapolis, the measure also would earmark up to 10 per cent of the $200 million mass transit bond issue approved last year for downstate communities. It passed, 100-42.

In a statement, the sponsors termed the measure a "significant step forward in the development of transportation systems in the smaller metropolitan areas of the state."

"By providing these grants which do not require local matching funds we hope to reduce the reliance of downstate mass transport systems on property tax revenues," they said.

Opponents blasted the measure—an amendment that bypassed committee and was tacked onto other legislation—as hastily drawn up and politically motivated.

Rep. W.D. Walsh, R-LaGrange Park, said "This legislation never should have been introduced in the waning hours of this session."

The General Assembly adjourns this week.

Some downstate lawmakers indicated they opposed the bill because legislative leaders refused to help them keep alive a measure sponsored by Rep. C.L. McCormick, R-Vienna, to place a two-year freeze on real estate tax rates. That legislation was killed last week.

Rep. Roland Tinsworth, D-Taylorville, said he doubted that most of the 17 transit districts would qualify for the aid under the terms of the bill, which now goes to the Senate.

In a key move of the current session, the House approved last week legislation to allow the city of Chicago to transfer goods and property surrounding mass transportation lines to the Chicago Transit Authority.

The CTA then would be able to use this property as a "soft match"—in place of matching funds—to attract state and federal transportation grants.

Some lawmakers have voiced fears that the legislation would give Chicago a monopoly on proceeds from the $200 million bond issue.

Demo Committee Votes To Unseat Alabama Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Credentials Committee of the Democratic National Convention voted 69 to 55 late Tuesday to seat Alabama's 37-member delegation, including 22 pledged to that state's Gov. George C. Wallace.

At the same time, the 150-member panel received a report from a hearing officer which held strongly in favor of challengers trying to unseat Mayor Richard Daley and 58 other uncommitted delegates from Chicago.

In another major development, another hearing examiner issued findings which appeared to support front-running Sen. George McGovern's claim to all 271 California delegates.

The Illinois and California cases were to be taken up by the full committee later in the week.

The vote to seat Alabama's regular delegation—which was challenged by a predominantly black faction—is almost certain to be disputed on the floor of the convention in Miami Beach.

The delegation was accused by challengers of having inadequate representation of women and minorities and improprieties leading to the delegate primary last May.

Jack Kurtz reported salaries dropped under the new food program by about $24,000 and that a good portion of the loss was absorbed during the first few months of the school year when the program was not working because of lack of equipment. Kurtz projected that the loss for next school year would be about $24,000.

He said this could be offset by increasing the cost of milk by one cent and possibly increasing the cost of all meals by five cents.

Kurtz said it might also be possible to do away with the high school Class A lunch program. He said it was being utilized by only 15 per cent of the students but the snack bar was doing a good business.

About 17,000 less meals were served during the past school year compared with a year previous.

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Governors of Midwestern states were told Tuesday what Illinois is doing to provide emergency medical care and what Nebraska is working on for better state agency communications.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie of Illinois and Dr. David R. Boyd, Illinois chief of Emergency Medical Services, told the Midwestern Governors Conference of the trauma care system which has been established in Illinois.

Boyd said regional trauma centers situated in university health education centers are equipped to handle almost any traumatic emergency. Area centers are set up in larger communities where excellent medical resources are available. And local centers provide basic life-saving resuscitation to the critically injured.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — As the world's leading industrial nation, the United States has long been accustomed to quoting figures showing it to be the first or biggest or best. Could that create future problems?

It certainly could, according to a Frenchman who advises many American corporations in marketing their products in Europe. Such statistics have been misleading since formation of the Common Market, says Bernard Krief.

Individually, it is true that the United States stands alone. But the Common Market nations collectively can show much larger figures in many industrial categories than can the United States.

There are 26 million more workers there, for example. Steel production is as high as in the United States. Sea transportation is three times larger. Reserve currencies total $40 billion compared with $13 billion here.

"Europe could become a dangerous industrial competitor to the United States," Krief said on a recent trip here from his Paris office, and he suggested that U.S. firms meet the competition head on by more aggressive exporting.

"In the U.S.A. management is very good, marketing men are very smart, and the struggle is very tough," he said. But then he noted that "less than 10 per cent of American companies have 90 per cent of the total export market."

He believes that opportunities are being missed to supply the expanding economies of Europe with consumer products, and he suggests also that the American economy might benefit from low-cost European imports.

But the most fascinating opportunity, as Krief sees it, will be in dealing with the smaller socialist nations, not only because their needs are growing but because they provide a foothold for future trade with the Soviet Union.

Krief predicts that within two years, U.S. trade with Eastern Europe will double to more than $1.2 billion a year. And he foresees the likelihood "in a few years" of some socialist nations gaining positions in the U.S. market.

In fact, he says, because of low labor costs it isn't at all unlikely that automobiles from Yugoslavia, which is now building a modern factory with annual capacity of 500,000 units, will be competitive here.

The New York Stock Exchange is also urging U.S. companies to export, but the exhortations aren't aimed at manufacturers. Securities dealers, says the Big Board, should be developing their markets in Western Europe and Japan.

Casualty Insurers Study Every Risk Individually

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Casualty insurers need to get back to fundamental principles—to do things the way Lloyds of London did in the old days, says Mike Carmichael.

Carmichael is a vice president of CIC Financial Corp., a small Chicago firm that writes workingmen's compensation insurance in Illinois.

Prior to 1960, CIC was like lots of other small casualty insurers. It bumbled along, doing things "by the book," sticking to pre-determined risk formulas and rates and wondering why its revenues and profits didn't grow faster.

"Then our chairman, Ralph Applegate, decided to make a drastic change," Carmichael said. "We decided to use the rate tables the way they did at Lloyds—just as a rough guideline. We decided we would study every risk individually, take it on if we possibly could, no matter how tough it seemed, and negotiate a rate high enough to cover it. That couldn't be done in all states, but Illinois law permits it."

Policy Pays Off
The policy has paid off like a winning lottery ticket.

Profits have risen 25 per cent a year, and there has been a 50 per cent stock dividend. Assets are up 74 per cent and premium income 83 per cent.

"We didn't accomplish that just by charging all the traffic would bear," said Carmichael.

SOYBEAN FUTURES RALLY SHARPLY
CHICAGO (AP) — Soybeans futures opened on a mixed tone on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday, then rallied sharply.

Soybeans advanced 2 1/4 cents while soybean meal prices pushed upward by $1 a ton and oil advanced more than 10 points.

Wheat gained nearly 1 cent a bushel and corn 1/4 cent. Oats and iced broilers were mixed and trade very slow.

The buying in the soybean complex developed after the opening, when prices were generally mixed and trade rather slow.

Buying of soybean meal and oil turned active and as prices of the end-products strengthened soybeans began to rally and short-covering developed.

There did not appear to be an outside reason for the sudden strength in the complex. Exports announced after the close Monday, covering last week, the week before and a year ago were expected to have a bearish effect on prices.

Corn, wheat and oats prices were generally mixed on the opening.

Corn then eased around 1/4 cent but recovered as commission house buying developed. Short-covering also was evident in the corn pit on the advance.

Buying in the wheat pit was of a mixed nature and sellers again rather scarce.

After about an hour, soybeans were 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 cents a bushel higher, July 3.43; wheat was 1/4 to 3/4 higher, July 1.41 1/4; corn was unchanged to 1/4 higher, July 1.19 1/4 and oats were 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, July 69 1/2 cents.

"We also showed our policyholders how to solve the problems that made them high-risk cases in the first place. To accomplish this we created our own engineering staff and tackled customer problems that the bigger insurance companies had returned to bother with."

Carmichael gave some examples. There was the Chinese man who had a big basement restaurant. He couldn't keep his insurance because employees and customers kept falling on the stairs. "He was having eight or nine falls a year in the place, each one costing the insurance carrier money," said Carmichael.

CIC agreed to take on the risk at a substantially increased rate but sent its own engineer to find a way to prevent the falls.

Tumbling Ceases
"We discovered the place had slick marble steps. The engineer put carborundum step plates on the stairs and the tumbling of workers and customers ceased," Carmichael said.

The Chinese proprietor wasn't too grateful. He eventually gave his insurance to a big company, "apparently just for reasons of prestige."

CIC isn't always able to reduce risks but it can provide insurance sometimes for people who can't get it otherwise. "A case in point was a firm of tuck pointers, people who repair mortar joints on old buildings," he explained. "The rate table put them on the masons' rate but their accident experience was much higher than that of ordinary masonry workers so nobody would insure them. Our engineer decided to put them on the window washers' rate, which is quite a bit higher. They've been able to live with that very well and it's good business for us."

RITES WEDNESDAY FOR FORMER SENATOR
CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Funeral services for former state Sen. Everett Peters will be held Wednesday.

Peters, a 78-year-old Republican from St. Joseph, died Monday in a Champaign hospital.

Peters was under indictment for official misconduct and alleged violation of the state ethics code in connection with the Illinois race-track stock scandal. He pleaded innocent to the misconduct charges Dec. 17, but his trial was postponed because of his poor health.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — A weak attempt at a rally faded by midsession Tuesday and the stock market wound up the day with small losses.

Trading was quiet throughout the day as investors awaited signs that the international monetary situation was stabilizing. The stock market had sustained sharp losses in the wake of Britain's decision late last week to float the pound.

Analysts attributed the small gains early in Tuesday's session to selective buying in issues that were underpriced due to recent market declines.

They said the inability of the market to sustain a rally led some investors back to the sidelines, pending further developments in the monetary situation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks finished the day off 1.13 at 935.28.

Of the 1,746 issues traded on the Big Board, declines outpaced advances 768 to 610. Volume of 13.75 million shares was up slightly from the 12.73 million which changed hands Monday.

The New York Stock Exchange, index of more than 1,400 common stocks closed down .05 at 59.41.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped 1.1 to 322.4, a new 1972 low. Industrials were off 8, rails were down 1.6 and utilities were off 1.

The most actively traded Big Board stock was H&R Block, down 1 1/4 at 14 1/4 on 445,300 shares, including a block of 354,000 shares at 13 1/4.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index dipped .03 to 27.24 as 3.44 million shares changed hands. Volume Monday had been a bit higher, 3.85 million. Of the 1,171 Amex issues traded, 497 declined and 365 advanced.

End-Of-Year Chores Approved By Board

Members of the board of education of School District 117 Tuesday evening handled a number of end-of-year housecleaning chores with the current fiscal year ending June 30 and the new fiscal year opening on July 1.

A letter from the Jacksonville Education Association cited the elimination of programs voted by the board on June 14 was contrary to at least two policies of the district and urged the board to reverse its position on curtailment of program. The letter was signed by JEA President Jackie May. The letter will be distributed to all members but no action was taken Tuesday evening.

Bids were awarded to Tappe Sporting Goods of Quincy for football equipment; Buster Sanitation Service for trash and garbage removal; Cisne and Schneider Co. for milk. Several out-of-town firms received a portion of the paper bids for consumable supplies.

A report is expected to be distributed concerning the sale and inventory of excess cafeteria equipment.

Three resignations and five appointments, one to a new position in the TMH program, received board approval. Another proposal was authorized for establishment of a special education class for children with behavior disorders and staffing with one teacher.

Salaries for four central office administrators were raised for the 1972-73 school year: assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction from $18,700 to $19,500; assistant superintendent for business, from $19,700 to $20,300; office manager and board of education secretary, from $8,800 to $9,400; supervisor of buildings and grounds, from $13,200 to $13,800. The measure passed over the negative votes of Colclasure and Morris.

Non-degree teachers were authorized a raise of $40 per year, to a maximum of $8,500. Some discussion resulted since the raise for the non-degree personnel was higher than for those with degrees on the low end of the salary schedule. This measure also passed over the negative votes of Colclasure and Morris.

Power Difficulties
The board backed a recommendation by the administration that it ask the municipal electric department to assume financial responsibility for labor and material costs to service electric equipment at Armstrong school when such is necessary because of malfunction caused by electric power supply irregularities.

The second part called for the municipal light department to install current regulating devices at Armstrong school with manual re-set.

Building supervisor Bill Gill said many of the previous service calls had been traced to a voltage problem with the city supply of power. He said the school has about $250,000 in equipment on the roof of the school and that the guarantee will not be honored by the equipment manufacturers unless the power supply is stabilized. Some of the compressors have five years to run, but most of the warranty on the roof-mounted heating and air-conditioning expires in August.

The year-end approvals included: authorizing preparation of a tentative budget, closing and opening funds, appointment of H. F. Courtney Ford as treasurer for one year beginning July 1, designation of what funds will be deposited in each of the three local banks, employment of Cannell and Cannell to conduct the 1972-73 audit and William L. Fay retained as school district attorney.

Special Ed Housing
The board approved a tax levy for accumulation of funds with which to construct special education facilities. The levy would yield between $48,000 and $50,000 annually, plus qualification of a state grant of $1,000 per professional staff member amounting to about $37,000. The tax can be kept for a period of eight years, although the resolution called for only four years. The levy must be adopted annually, however, and would be subject to annual revision.

Eventually, administrative and diagnostic facilities will be constructed. The cafeteria report shows a loss of about $26,000 for the school year. The drop is also evident in the number of meals served which dropped from a value of $199,000 in 1970-71 to $148,300 for 1971-72.

TRAINING SESSION—Firemen from throughout Central Illinois listen as a Ranger Insurance Co. expert explains the technique of extinguishing and controlling fires in gas bulk tanks Tuesday. Below, firemen train their hoses on flames and vapor escaping from a special bulk tank used to simulate gas fires.

Firemen's Training Workshop

Over 150 firemen from 35 departments throughout Central Illinois attended a workshop in LP-propane gas fire fighting techniques here Tuesday evening.

The workshop—sponsored by the Ranger-Pan American Insurance Companies, the University of Illinois Firefighting School and the Illinois LP Gas Association—gave firemen practical experience in battling fires in propane gas tanks.

A specially constructed bulk tank, one of three in existence, was used to simulate a gas fire.

In groups of five, the firemen advanced upon the flaming tank with streams of water to cool the tank until the fire was extinguished, and then shut off the fuel supply valve.

A fire was lighted underneath the tank until the relief valve opened with a shriek that could be heard blocks away from the Johnson Street demonstration site. Flames shot 40 feet high from the tank.

The second part of the training session utilized a "Christmas tree" of gas pipe connections that blazed at 4.5 million BTU's. This device was used to simulate a fire in gas supply pipes.

The techniques taught at the workshop are applicable to any type of gas storage tank fire, from small cylinders to railroad cars.

Firemen from cities as distant as Decatur and Quincy attended the session as well as firefighters from rural districts where LP gas is used extensively.

Police Search For Bluffs Man Continues

An intensive search was launched Tuesday for Robert Laughery, 29, of Route 1, Bluffs, after officials received a report that he was reported missing. According to officials, he was last seen about 10:30 p.m. Monday when he walked out of his home.

He is reportedly an epileptic. Members of the Jacksonville Rescue Squad searched a private pond near Merrill in Scott county Tuesday morning after speculation that he might have drowned. Laughery could have wandered off elsewhere according to officials, but the pond was checked as a possibility.

Police are continuing their search for Laughery.

DOOR SMASHED IN CAR COLLISION

Leslie Kirby, 23, of 750 E. Chambers, was ticketed for unsafe opening of a vehicle door after a collision in the 200 block of South Mauvaisterre about 1:45 p.m. Tuesday.

Officers said the Kirby woman opened the door of her parked car and it was struck by a southbound auto driven by Stephen M. McNeece, 17, of 469 S. East.

About noon Tuesday, Rodney Wallace of Ashland reported to police that his car was damaged while parked in the Sandy Street lot. Police were investigating the hit and run collision on the basis of a note left by a witness indicating a Chapin woman was the driver of the second auto.

Findley Announces Trip To 5 Countries

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Paul Findley (R-Ill.) will leave Thursday on a two-week fact-finding mission to five countries in the Middle East and southern Europe.

Findley, a member of both the House Agriculture and Foreign Affairs Committees, will combine a study of U.S. foreign aid programs with his on-going campaign to expand U.S. farm exports. He will visit Egypt, Romania, Israel, Greece, and Italy.

Findley issued the following statement from his Washington office before leaving:

"I have three main objectives in making this trip: first, I will seek ways to expand U.S. exports, particularly of agricultural products; second, I will inspect foreign aid programs in Greece and Israel; third, I will seek ways to improve relations with Romania, Greece, and Egypt.

"My visits to Egypt and Romania are in response to special invitations I received from both governments six months ago. Because tension between Egypt and Israel continues, I decided to visit both countries to see and hear both sides of the issues.

"In Egypt I hope to learn what can be done to re-establish normal diplomatic relations between our countries. Peace in the Middle East depends on good communication and understanding between Egypt, the leader of the Arab world, and the United States, which has close ties with Israel.

"My main objective in the visit to Israel will be to inspect their refugee program and economic programs the U.S. government supports.

"Romania is one of the few countries in the world which has diplomatic relations with both Egypt and Israel (the U.S. has relations only with Israel). Thus, Romania is in a key position to play an important role in bringing about a Middle East settlement.

"Another reason for visiting Romania is to explore the potential for expanding our trade with that country. President Nixon has already endorsed my proposal for normal trade relations with Romania.

"In Greece I hope to interview Premier Papadopoulos to brief him on the current attitude of the U.S. Congress on Greek relations. I had such an interview with him three years ago on my only other visit to Greece. I will also inspect U.S. military facilities on Greek territory.

"In Italy I will interview officials about U.S. export prospects now that the Common Market is being expanded, and the question of home-porting of U.S. naval personnel in Italy.

"My wife, Lucille, and our two children, Craig and Diane, will accompany me on the trip at my personal expense.

"This trip complements my soybean mission to Moscow earlier this year. In recent years I have made several trips to Europe in my continuing program to expand U.S. trade, and have met with agricultural officials of foreign nations in Washington.

Congressman Findley has served for five years as official delegate to NATO conferences. In 1965 he headed a special congressional mission to Paris to explore U.S.-French differences. He is also the author of numerous articles on national policy on agriculture and military strategy.

In preparation for this trip, Findley has had two lengthy private conversations with Assistant Secretary of State Joseph Sisco, the State Department official charged with policy formulation in the Middle East. He has also conferred with Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, ambassadors of each country he will visit, and numerous experts outside of government.

On School Funding

By LARRY KRAMP Associated Press Writer SPRINGFIELD, Ill., (AP) — A bipartisan agreement on common school funding for fiscal 1973 was announced Tuesday in the Illinois Senate.

The pact would add about $11 million to the $787 million proposed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie for state distribution to public elementary and high schools.

Attempt at passage is expected Wednesday.

Although the agreement appeared to help remove road blocks to planned adjournment this week, the agreement is subject to ratification in the House.

Sen. John Gilbert, R-Carbondale, the Republican education spokesman, announced the agreement. Sen. Cecil A. Partridge, of Chicago, the Democratic majority leader, said he would support it "without joy or elation."

Partridge called on Ogilvie to pledge a share of anticipated federal revenue sharing funds for common schools. Democrats earlier attempted to tack $41 million to the $787 million figure proposed by Ogilvie. This was a Democratic retreat from a proposal by State School Superintendent Michael Bakalis to add $124 million.

The agreement includes excusing repayments next year by school districts overpaid on state distributive funds for common schools during the current fiscal year. This is a one-time benefit not incorporated in the state formula for paying aid to common schools.

The pardoning legislation would bring in about $9 million new money to schools. About $2 million would go to Chicago and about $7 million downstate. Chicago schools would receive $1.8 million in other new money because of its denser school populations.

Although no new money is involved in another aspect of the agreement, another $3.75 million would be provided to help day-to-day operation costs of Chicago schools. This sum would come from an appropriation already budgeted by Bakalis for an urban education program which will be postponed.

Gilbert was cross examined by Republican Senators who apparently feared the agreement meant benefits for Chicago schools at the expense of downstate dual districts.

"No money is taken from the dual districts and put in for Chicago," Gilbert said.

During debate on the earlier $41 million proposal, which fell two votes short of passage, Democrats threw challenges about the failure to meet the new state constitutional mandate that the state bear the primary burden of the cost of education.

Republicans replied that the Ogilvie administration had increased state aid to common schools until the state bears about 40 per cent of the total cost.

Sen. John Knuppel, D-Petersburg, a delegate to the 1970 state Constitutional Convention, said delegates by "primary" meant 50 per cent plus.

In announcing his support of the eventual agreement, Partridge said, "This is almost 11 per cent below where we should be. I hope revenue sharing will bring us additional revenue." Then he called on Ogilvie to pledge "a proportionate share" of the anticipated federal revenue sharing funds.

Parochial Bill Sent To Ogilvie—Again

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Aid for Illinois private and parochial schools totaling $30 million in the fiscal year starting Saturday was approved today by the House and sent to the governor.

The so-called parochial plan, which was blocked by the state Supreme Court after it passed last year, won 104-51 approval.

It furnishes $20.5 million for textbooks for such auxiliary services as health units and guidance counseling, $4.5 million for pupils from families with less than $3,000 annual income and $5 million for the nine-member educational development board to foster innovative programs.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, the House sponsor, said he hopes it will provide a "conclusive, definitive decision" from the Illinois Supreme Court on state aid to church-run schools.

Schlickman, leader of the five-year fight to enact parochial aid, argued that the plan is needed to bolster private and parochial schools and avert a flood of additional pupils into public institutions. The bill was sponsored in the Senate by Sen. Robert Cherry, D-Chicago.

Rep. Robert Mann, D-Chicago, warned that the measure would destroy our public schools and "further polarize our society."

"It will not preserve our public interest because the affluent and the near affluent will have their stakes elsewhere," Mann said.

Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, attacked the plan as "a hoax."

Backed by Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, a parochial aid package passed the legislature last year but never went into effect.

Exercising new amendatory veto powers granted to him by the state's 1970 Constitution, Ogilvie substantially reshaped the bills after they cleared the General Assembly to bring them into line with court decisions on such aid.

But the Illinois Supreme Court ruled that Ogilvie went too far in amending the legislation. It held that the House and Senate could not concur in such amendments even if they wished to do so.

The current package is essentially the same as the parochial bills approved last year. The relative ease with which it passed contrasted to protracted and emotion-charged debate that surrounded it in previous years.

Meanwhile, the Senate refused to approve a state school aid formula that, its Democratic sponsor said, would generate $823 million for local districts in fiscal 1973.

The proposal, representing a downward modification of the Democratic stand on school aid, fell two votes short of passage with nine Republicans registering present.

Previously, the Democrats backed a $911 million formula devised by Michael J. Bakalis, superintendent of public instruction.

Sen. Thomas Hynes, D-Chicago, sponsor of the new measure, portrayed it as a sacrifice move and a concession to Ogilvie forces seeking passage of a formula to generate $788 million in aid to local districts.

In a related action, the House approved a $125 million appropriation for the Downstate Teachers Retirement Fund. It was $41 million less than originally had been sought for the fund.

D. McClelland Writes Article For Magazine

In the current issue of the Saturday Evening Post there is an interesting article by David C. McClelland, son of C. P. McClelland, President Emeritus of MacMurray College. The title of the article is "Do I. Q. Tests Measure Intelligence?"

David McClelland graduated from the Jacksonville High School and Yale University, and is remembered by many residents of this city.

He is Professor of Psychology at Harvard University. Appointed to Harvard in 1956, he has also served as chairman of the Fulbright Advisory Panel on Psychology and as director of research projects for the Ford Foundation, the Carnegie Foundation, the State Department, the National Institute of Mental Health and the Peace Corps. Professor McClelland is author of many books, including Personality: The Achieving Society; The Roots of Consciousness; Motivating Economic Achievement, and Alcohol and Human Motivation.
